25 Word-for-Word Responses to the Objections Killing Your Commission

By Warren Davis | Cellular Sales — Verizon's #1 Authorized Retailer

Every objection is a question in disguise. "It's too expensive" really means "I don't see enough value yet." Your job isn't to argue — it's to answer the real question underneath. This guide gives you 25 field-tested responses. For each: the real meaning, word-for-word language, and a close line.

SECTION 1 — PRICE OBJECTIONS

OBJECTION 1 "It's too expensive."
Real Meaning:	I don't see enough value yet.
Response:	"I completely understand. Can I ask — expensive compared to what? What were you expecting to pay? Because once I show you everything that's included, the number usually looks different."
Follow-up:	"What's the part that feels like too much?"
OBJECTION 2 "I can't afford it right now."
Real Meaning:	Help me find a way to make this work.
Response:	"I hear you — and I'm not here to pressure you. But let me ask: if we could structure this in a way that fits your budget, is this something you'd want to move forward with?"
OBJECTION 3 "I need to check my budget."
Real Meaning:	I'm interested but not fully committed.
Response:	"That's smart — you should know your numbers. While you're checking, let me hold this for you so you're not starting from scratch if it works out."
OBJECTION 4 "That's more than I wanted to spend."
Real Meaning:	Get me closer to a number I'm comfortable with.
Response:	"Totally fair. Let's back into it — what number were you thinking, and I'll see what I can do to get there."
Follow-up:	"Sometimes there's flexibility I haven't shown you yet."

OBJECTION 5 "I can wait until the price drops."
Real Meaning:	I'm not in a rush.
Response:	"That's a reasonable thought. The tricky part is this promo is only available through [timeframe]. If the price doesn't drop but this offer expires, you'd actually end up paying more by waiting."

SECTION 2 — TIMING OBJECTIONS

OBJECTION 6 "I need to think about it."

Real Meaning: I'm not confident enough yet.

Response: "Of course — and I want you to feel good about this. What's the main thing you're turning over in your mind? If I can answer it now, I want to save you the back-and-forth."

OBJECTION 7 "I'm not ready yet."

Real Meaning: I don't feel urgency.

Response: "Totally fine. Can I ask what 'ready' looks like for you? I want to make sure when you are ready, everything's lined up perfectly."

OBJECTION 8 "I'll come back later."

Real Meaning: I want to escape without committing.

Response: "I appreciate that — and I'll be here. One thing though: this offer expires [date/time]. I'd hate for you to come back and it be gone. Is there anything stopping you from deciding today?"

OBJECTION 9 "It's not a good time."

Real Meaning: Something else is competing for attention/money.

Response: "I get it — timing matters. When would be a better time? I can follow up then, and I'll make sure to hold any current promotions for you if I can."

OBJECTION 10 "I just got a new phone."

Real Meaning: I don't see the need.

Response: "Totally makes sense. A lot of my best customers felt the same way — until they saw what the trade-in value was on their current device. It's worth 30 seconds to know, even if you don't act on it."

SECTION 3 — AUTHORITY OBJECTIONS

OBJECTION 11 "I need to talk to my spouse/partner."

Real Meaning:	I don't want to make this call alone.
Response:	"Of course — this is a joint decision. What if I set everything up so all your spouse has to do is say yes? That way you're not making another trip."
Follow-up:	"What do you think they'll want to know?"

OBJECTION 12 "My boss has to approve it."

Real Meaning:	I need something to show decision-makers.
Response:	"That makes sense. Let me put together a summary for you — the breakdown, the ROI, the value — so you can walk in with everything they need. That way you're not doing the selling, the numbers are."

OBJECTION 13 "It's not my decision."

Real Meaning:	I'm not the buyer.
Response:	"Totally understand. Who is the decision-maker? Would it help if I reached out to them directly, or would you rather I give you everything you need to present it?"

OBJECTION 14 "I want to do more research."

Real Meaning:	I don't fully trust you or this yet.
Response:	"Smart move — you should know what you're getting. What are the top two or three things you want to confirm? Let me pull that up right now and we can look at it together."

OBJECTION 15 "I need to check with my accountant."

Real Meaning:	I want professional validation.
Response:	"Absolutely. While you're doing that, let me send you a spec sheet with all the numbers laid out so your accountant has exactly what they need to evaluate it quickly."

SECTION 4 — VALUE OBJECTIONS

OBJECTION 16 "I don't really need it."

Real Meaning: I don't see the benefit clearly enough.

Response: "Fair enough. Can I ask — what would it need to do for you to feel like you needed it? Because I want to make sure I'm showing you the right thing, not just pitching."

OBJECTION 17 "I've seen better deals online."

Real Meaning: Match it or beat it.

Response: "Pull it up — I'd love to see it. Sometimes online deals have hidden fees or don't include what we offer in-store. Let's compare apples to apples."

OBJECTION 18 "I'm happy with what I have."

Real Meaning: Give me a reason to change.

Response: "That's great — loyalty matters. I'm curious though, when did you last actually compare? Because the gap has changed a lot in the last year. Would it hurt to know what you're missing?"

OBJECTION 19 "I've been with [Competitor] for years."

Real Meaning: I'm comfortable and change feels risky.

Response: "That loyalty says a lot about you. Here's my question — have they rewarded that loyalty? Because what I can offer you today is built around what you're already paying for, just better."

OBJECTION 20 "Your competitor offers more."

Real Meaning: Justify why I should choose you.

Response: "Tell me what they're offering. I want to be honest with you — if they're genuinely better for your situation, I'll tell you. But in my experience, once we do a real comparison, the picture changes."

SECTION 5 — MISCELLANEOUS OBJECTIONS

OBJECTION 21 "I need to think about it more."

Real Meaning: I'm stalling.

Response: "Of course. While you're thinking — what's the one thing you're most unsure about? Let me address that right now so it doesn't slow you down later."

OBJECTION 22 "My contract isn't up yet."

Real Meaning: I'm stuck — help me get unstuck.

Response: "Let me run the numbers on your ETF. Sometimes the savings on the new plan pay for the exit fee in 2-3 months. Worth knowing, right?"

OBJECTION 23 "I don't use my phone that much."

Real Meaning: I don't see value in upgrading.

Response: "That's actually a great sign — it means you might be overpaying for what you're using. Let me look at your usage and find something that fits better. You might even save money."

OBJECTION 24 "I already have something that works."

Real Meaning: Change feels risky.

Response: "If it works, that matters. But 'works' and 'optimal' are different things. Can I show you what an upgrade would look like — and you decide if it's worth it?"

OBJECTION 25 "I just don't see the value."

Real Meaning: I need a clearer picture of the benefit.

Response: "That's on me — let me try again. The value isn't in the feature, it's in what it does for you. What matters most to you right now — saving money, better coverage, or something else?"

Every objection is a buying signal — they're still talking to you. Your job is to find the real question and answer it.
